Pastor's Column

The Dignity of Work – As we celebrate Labor Day this weekend, I came across a lesson Pope Francis gave a couple of years ago at a General Audience. Reflecting on the life of St. Joseph, he spoke about the dignity of labor, and how it is essential for our human development and our growth in holiness. But even as he speaks these noble words, he realizes that not everyone finds work pleasant and uplifting. Some people do grueling work in mines and factories, and children are sometimes exploited and forced to work. The Pope is also mindful of those who have no work and suffer greatly because of it. With this in mind, he underlines that work is an essential part of human life, and is even a “path of sanctification.” As he puts it, “work is not only a means of earning a living: it is also a place where we express ourselves [and] feel useful.”

Unfortunately, he adds, that work can become a place of social injustice, rather than being protected to respect human dignity and guarantee livelihoods. The Pope continues, it would be good to ask ourselves with what spirit we carry out our daily work, and how our work relates to others and our destiny. He invites us to see how Jesus worked and learned His trade from St. Joseph. “Today, we should ask ourselves what we can do to recover the value of work; and what contribution we can make, as the Church, so that work can be redeemed from the logic of mere profit and can be experienced as a fundamental right and duty of the person, which expresses and increases his or her dignity.” In conclusion, the Pope invited everyone to recite a prayer to Saint Joseph:

O Saint Joseph, Patron of the Church! You, who side by side with the Word made flesh, worked each day to earn your bread, drawing from Him the strength to live and to toil; you who experienced the anxiety of the morrow; the bitterness of poverty, the uncertainty of work; you who today give the shining example, humble in the eyes of men but most exalted in the sight of God: protect workers in their hard daily lives, defending them from discouragement, from negative revolt, and from pleasure loving temptations; and keep peace in the world, that peace which alone can ensure the development of peoples, Amen.

BEING CATHOLIC

Got Questions? The RCIA program (Rite of Christian Initiation for Adults) helps adults understand the Catholic faith better. Whether you're a lifelong Catholic, someone curious about what Catholics teach and believe, or someone wishing to complete their Sacraments of Initiation, such as completing Confirmation or 1st Holy Communion, check out the RCIA program. A seeker by the name of Augustine once said, “Our hearts are restless, until they rest in God.” And that’s why I love being Catholic. To find out more, contact:
